Handel’s

Messiah

“At the center of non-violence stands the principle of love.”

Co-sponsored by the Schiller Institute and the Foundation for the Revival of Classical Culture
"The choice today is not between violence and non-violence. The choice today is between non-violence and non-existence."
-Martin Luther King April 3, 1968, one day before his assassination in Memphis, Tenn.

Handel's Messiah is the embodiment of Agape, the "strength to love" the world, and mankind, not as we are, but as we should be. It was composed by him in about 24 days during the summer of 1741. Handel, sick, partially paralyzed, in massive debt and with failing eyesight, created a musical expression of the Old and New Testaments that may be the most performed Classical composition in the world, and, other than Beethoven's Ninth Symphony, perhaps the most famous.

Handel's personal infirmities and misfortunes had, in a sense, also a "cosmic" expression in the year 1741. Ireland was then at the end of the two-year famine of 1739-41. The "Little Ice Age" of 1400-1800 was attenuating, but had not ended. "Harvests failed, coal prices soared, and the water in the water mills froze, stopping production, including production of ground wheat for the bakers." Spiritual/physical redemption was, for these times, not a mere Biblical allegory, but an historical necessity. Messiah’s musical optimism, the moral "pedal point" of the entire piece, from the opening tenor recitative "Comfort Ye, My People" to the soprano aria "I Know That My Redeemer Liveth," and the concluding great "Amen," gave the gift of hope to a hopeless time.

Its first performance in Dublin in April of 1742 directed all proceeds to benefit debtors' prisons, the Mercer's Hospital and the Charitable Infirmary. One-hundred-forty-two debtors were freed from debtors' prison following that first concert. Later, Handel performed the Messiah in London, with all proceeds benefiting the Foundling Hospital--a needed home for abandoned infants and children. In part because of this, the piece, though written as an Easter composition, came to be particularly associated with Christmas; it was a practical application of the principle of "the New Dispensation" that is the very premise of the purpose of Christmas--the redemption of humanity.

The poet Friedrich Schiller tells us: "The will is the species character of man...All nature acts according to reason; (man's) prerogative is merely, that he act according to reason with consciousness and will. All other things must; man is the being, who wills." Today, as nearly all religious, political and educational institutions fail us, it is the duty of the free citizens of the world, to use what Martin Luther King called Agape, the "strength to love," to call forth from within their fellow citizens the will to take action against the despotism of arbitrary violence. That is the happy solution that Handel wished to impart to his listeners. As he remarked after being complimented on his composition, Handel hoped that he had done more than entertain people. He hoped that he had changed them.
On April 9, 1988, at a conference on “Music and Classical Aesthetics,” at the Casa di Verdi in Milan, Italy, the Schiller Institute launched a worldwide campaign to restore the scientific tuning pitch of the Classical composers from Bach through Verdi, of Middle C= 256 Hz (A no higher than 432 Hz). Five years later, on April 8, 1993, the famous Italian tenor Carlo Bergonzi, a participant at the earlier conference (which included Lyndon and Helga LaRouche, as well as Italian opera luminaries soprano Renata Tebaldi, and baritone Piero Capuccilli) established in a seminar held at Carnegie Hall's Weill Hall, the superiority, through demonstrations with male and female singers, of the Verdi tuning, over the arbitrarily high “modern” tuning of A=440 Hz and even higher. Bergonzi stated, "It is particularly important to raise the question of tuning in connection with bel canto technique, since today's high tuning misplaces all register shifts, and makes it very difficult for a singer to have the sound float above the breath. When an F-sharp becomes a G.... Everything is misplaced a half-step, and the technique fails."

Today’s performance (as with all Schiller Institute musical performances) will be done at the proper scientific tuning, as mandated by Giuseppe Verdi.

John Sigerson, Director

John Sigerson is a founding member of the Schiller Institute and currently its Music Director. He has worked for decades with Schiller Institute Chairman Helga Zepp-LaRouche and her husband Lyndon LaRouche to bring about a Renaissance of Classical musical composition and performance. His musical education includes study with contrabass soloist Gary Karr, and voice with Mexico’s José Briano and Italy’s Antonella Banaudi.

In 1992, he co-authored A Manual on the Rudiments of Tuning and Registration, in which the general argument is presented why Classical music must be based on a fixed tuning of A=432 cycles per second. Sigerson has directed choruses for the Schiller Institute in Europe, Mexico, Colombia, and the United States, and enjoys singing an occasional concert of Classical German Lieder.

The Unitarian Church of All Souls is one of New York City's most culturally significant locations. Founded as the first Unitarian church in New York City in 1819, several of its members, most notably its pastor Henry Whitney Bellows (who headed All Souls from 1839 until 1882), as well as congregant Louisa Lee Schuyler, were the founders of the United States Sanitary Commission, that indispensable private agency which cared for Union Troops as a support for Lincoln's America in the 1961-65 war, establishing modern battlefield medicine and saving literally tens of thousands of lives. (Louisa Schuyler, for example, established America's first nursing hospital, Bellevue Hospital of New York City.)

Together with persons such as Frederick Law Olmsted, the architect responsible for New York City's Central Park, members of the church, operating through such patriotic organizations as the Union League, were fierce proponents of the Federal Union cause. They were instrumental in the establishment of the first African-American regiments mustered in New York City in the aftermath of the July, 1863 Draft Riots. Members of the church included writers Herman Melville, Caroline Kirkland and Catherine Sedgwick, the latter two acquaintances of Edgar Allen Poe. William Cullen Bryant, the editor of the New York Post (the then-New York Evening Post, who introduced Lincoln to deliver his famous "A House Divided Cannot Stand" speech at New York's Cooper Union, was also a member, as was industrialist Peter Cooper, founder of the eponymous institution. Lawyers, financiers, playwrights and poets made the church their place of worship. Many of its members were instrumental in the founding of the Metropolitan Museum of Art.

All Souls is deeply immersed in music ministry. Its well-known All Souls Chorus, its All Souls Community Chorus, and its Children's and Youth Choirs, are only the basics of its musical outreach, which also involves quarterly concerts presented through the Musica Viva concert program. The relationship between worship, social justice and music is a given, placed into operational practice. The Foundation For The Revival Of Classical Culture held its summer school at All Souls in 2015, and hopes to the same this coming July and August.
The Foundation For The Revival Of Classical Culture

The Foundation For The Revival Of Classical Culture has as its mission the reintroduction of classical principles of musical, artistic, and scientific practice and performance to the everyday lives of American, and other, citizens, especially youth. This is to be accomplished by inspiring what is often erroneously called "the average citizen" to participate in forms of "re-creation" that differ from mere "entertainment". This includes the performance of significant and challenging works of the classical repertoire, both instrumental and vocal, by amateur and semi-professional individuals and small groups.

The Foundation promotes the idea that the music of thinkers such as Bach, Mozart, Haydn, Handel, Beethoven, Schubert, Schumann, Brahms, Mendelssohn, Dvorak, Verdi and many others, is the natural medium for developing the minds of young people. It is the cognitive self-development of those who do not merely listen, but reproduce, both the performance and the composition of music, that results in a natural elevation of the character of the student. The mastery of a complex instrument, such as the oboe, violin, trumpet, or, indeed, the human voice itself, fortifies the natural intelligence that lies in every child, enabling him or her to share creativity with several, or many others, in rehearsals and performances devoted to the most energetic and transparent presentation of that quality of thought-emotion which is the essence and the engine of classical composition.

Concerts such as this performance of Handel's Messiah provide our students an incentive to discover the inner life of music that may well otherwise remain inaccessible to them. By demonstrating that neither poverty, nor unfamiliarity with repertoire, nor lack of language skills, need be construed as an excuse not to become familiar with the musical discoveries of some of the greatest minds in history, we free the student to not merely dream, but to know that "nothing is impossible."

The Schiller Institute NYC Chorus began exactly one year ago, in the turbulent December of 2014, in the wake of the Ferguson, Missouri riots and the resonant anger in New York after the Eric Garner Grand Jury decision. On December 20th, at the tragic moment when two New York City Police Officers were assassinated in Brooklyn, the Schiller Institute was holding its first Sing-Along of Handel's Messiah dedicated to the principle of “the sanctity of every human life” at All Souls Unitarian Church.

This chorus is dedicated to restoring the unity of our nation, from Manhattan, and for that reason it is a crucial element of Lyndon LaRouche's “Manhattan Project,” launched in October of 2014. LaRouche has repeatedly referred to the genius of Alexander Hamilton, who, from Manhattan, organized the creation of our Federal Republic for “a more perfect union.” Our chorus strives to unify its wonderfully diverse voices in a beautiful harmony, by working to master the principles of Italian bel canto (beautiful singing), AND by singing at the Verdi-mandated scientific tuning of A = no higher than 432 Hz (C=256 Hz).

You are invited to join this chorus!

After this performance, the chorus will begin a new season in January of next year. All are encouraged to join. We are planning to form a Schiller Institute Chorus in Brooklyn beginning in April of 2016. If you are interested in participating in either Manhattan or Brooklyn, please call Margaret at 646-509-5451. Or visit us on Facebook at facebook.com/schillerchorusnyc.
